SCDHSC0319
Support the families of children and young people in their own homes

Overview
This standard identifies the requirements for supporting the families of children and young people in their own homes when they are experiencing difficulties. This begins with preparing for engagement with families and supporting families to agree areas for work. The standard includes enabling the family to engage in addressing issues with a view to achieving agreed outcomes. It also covers monitoring and evaluating the work.

Scope/range related to performance criteria

The details in this field are explanatory statements of scope and/or examples of possible contexts in which the NOS may apply; they are not to be regarded as range statements required for achievement of the NOS.

Note: Where the child, young person or family member finds it difficult or impossible to express their own preferences and make decisions about their life, achievement of this standard may require the involvement of advocates or others who are able to represent the views and best interests of the child, young person or family member.

Where there are language differences within the work setting, achievement of this standard may require the involvement of interpreters or translation services.

Accessible ways may include telephone, letter, email or other formats and must take account of methods of communication that suit the preferences, needs, dignity and values of family members.

Active participation is a way of working that regards individuals as active partners in their own care or support rather than passive recipients. Active participation recognises each individual’s right to participate in the activities and relationships of everyday life as independently as possible.

To communicate may include using the individual’s preferred spoken language, the use of signs, the use of symbols or pictures, writing, objects of reference, communication passports, other non verbal forms of communication, human and technological aids to communication.

The family includes people who are legally related and those who through relationships have become an accepted part of the family unit.

Key people are those who are important to family members and who can make a difference to their well-being. Key people may include wider family, friends, carers and others with whom the family has a supportive relationship. Engagement with key people should always be done with the knowledge of the family and in most cases with the agreement of the family.

Others are your colleagues and other professionals whose work contributes to the family’s well-being and who enable you to carry out your role.

Your own reactions may relate to strong feelings, beliefs and attitudes about the nature of the difficulties facing the family that may affect your interaction and work with them.

Scope/range relating to knowledge and understanding

The details in this field are explanatory statements of scope and/or examples of possible contexts in which the NOS may apply; they are not to be regarded as range statements required for achievement of the NOS.

All knowledge statements must be applied in the context of this standard.

Factors that may affect the health, wellbeing and development may include adverse circumstances or trauma before or during birth; autistic spectrum conditions; discrimination; domestic violence; family circumstances; foetal alcohol syndrome; harm or abuse; injury; learning disability; medical conditions (chronic or acute); mental health; physical disability; physical ill health; poverty; profound or complex needs; sensory needs; social deprivation; substance misuse

Values

Adherence to codes of practice or conduct where applicable to your role and the principles and values that underpin your work setting, including the rights of children, young people and adults. These include the rights:

To be treated as an individual
To be treated equally and not be discriminated against
To be respected
To have privacy
To be treated in a dignified way
To be protected from danger and harm
To be supported and cared for in a way that meets their needs, takes account of their choices and also protects them
To communicate using their preferred methods of communication and language
To access information about themselves
